

What does not seem to be right with telemarketing business is they do not have to deliver their name or number to the caller id. Every other business or individual has to. The thing about telemarketing that I really don't like is when you answer the call if they don't have an attendant to give the call to they hang up on you. If I sat at home and called people and hung up the law would come to my home for me. Some time it takes days to get them on the phone to tell them not to call back.
